IMEDI BRUCHSAL e.V.

Non-profit organization to directly help people in need

IMEDI means HOPE

„Life is a journey full of stumbling blocks, with many highs and lows, many tears and smiles; but each tear you turn into a smile brings a smile to your heart.“

(Ina, 1st Chairman IMEDI)

Who we are?

We are people who were motivated by Ina Henninger to establish this association in Bruchsal. Our aim is to help people whose individual fate brought them into hard situations. This shall be done individually, directly, non-bureaucratically, and without a middle man via bigger NGOs.

Ina spent some years in Madagascar and one year in India, and realized how many things are taken for granted in Germany (which is NOT at all the case in other countries):

We live in luxury, our water is clean, we can even drink from the tap, education is free, our cars have windows, our public transportation is sufficient and usually arrives on time, medical support is available 24/7, and we always have enough to eat.

10€ in Germany is very little, yet in Madagascar, it is enough to live well for a good week (the average salary is just 1€/day!)

Poverty of individuals is incredibly high, and without help from outside, they can often not overcome it.

The executive committee

Actions so far!

School fees for Felix' kids

Felix is a guard and only has a small salary. Nevertheless, he sends his two sons to school and pays about 5 € per month for each of his kids. Thus, his salary is hardly enough, and he sometimes doesn't know how to go on, or if he will have to take one kid out of school. IMEDI paid half the school fee for each kid for a school year, so both can continue their education.

Support of a children's home

Kids in Madagascar often have very long and sometimes insurmountable ways getting to school, and many parents can't afford to pay the school fees. In a children's home, kids can live close to school and get warm meals. IMEDI spontaneously provided three months worth of funds to pay for daily portions of rice and veggies for these kids.

Support of the poorest

IMEDI supports Tracy (American). She and her Malagasy husband only have a small salary and nevertheless pastor a growing home church, pay the school fees for 7 children in their community, and help feed 19 poor families with rice and warm meals after their homechurch once a week.

Contributions for school kids in need

The executive committee of IMEDI arrived in Antananarivo/ Madagascar with suitcases full of clothes and things to be distributed at a local school to kids and their parents. These things were received with great joy and gratefulness. This event was supported by TAM (which means "Ton ami meilleur"), a Malagasy non-profit organization that wants to start a school canteen in collaboration with IMEDI, because some students don't do well and can't pass their exams at school due to excruciating hunger.
